The Sea-Doo logo is visible on the side of the watercraft.

Responsible Fishing

Be respectful

As a member of the Sea-Doo fishing community, it is your responsibility to respect other fishers and boaters so waterways remain open for fishing. Join us in being a great ambassador for the sport!

Follow fishing and boating regulations

This is one of the most important things we can do as fishers. Every region has its own regulations; it is your responsibility to read, understand, and follow them.

Don't fish near swimming and beach areas

Avoid fishing near public and private swimming and beach areas so you don't leave sharp lures where people play.

Handle fish with care and release quickly

If you're catching and releasing, handle the fish delicately and release it as soon as possible. Don't keep them out of the water for too long, and make sure to hold them horizontally when taking a picture.

Drain and clean your watercraft after every trip

Traveling to different waterways is a great way to enjoy fishing, but it can lead to unintended consequences, most notably the introduction of invasive species. Remove any vegetation from your Sea-Doo, get rid of mud, and drain your bilge, cooler, and any other area that may be holding water. You should also consider drying and disinfecting your watercraft to make sure it is ready for the next launch.

Pick up your trash

Do your part in keeping the waters clean for all.

Practice carbon-conscious fishing

Your Sea-Doo is equipped with ECO® Mode, which automatically limits engine power so the engine runs at the most efficient level. This saves fuel and reduces emissions.
